IN REPLY REFER TO

January 25, 1971

The Honorable J. James Exon
Governor of Nebraska
State Capitol Building
Lincoln, Nebraska

Dear Governor Exon:

I have the honor to transmit to you herewith the Thirty-Eighth Biennial Report of the Department of Water Resources.

The report contains a brief summary of the activities of this department during the two-year period ending September 30, 1970. It also contains lists of the water appropriations of record at the end of the two-year period and other statistical data concerning matters over which this department has jurisdiction.

Respectfully submitted,

Director of Water Resources

FOREWORD

This Biennial Report is prepared and rendered pursuant to the provisions of Section 46-214 Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, 1945. It is a full report of the work of the department with respect to water resources during the two-year period ending September 30, 1970. It contains a complete list of the water appropriations of record on September 30, 1970, and a list of the appropriations canceled during the period. It also contains lists of public power and public power and irrigation districts and reclamation districts.

This report does not contain discharge records of streams. They are published annually by the U. S. Geological Survey. Neither does it contain records of diversions from streams, and miscellaneous water records which are published biennially as Hydrographic Reports. The reports of the Power Review Board, which is attached to this department, are published annually, so the activities of the Board are not published herein.

WATER SUPPLY

The water supply in the natural streams of the western part of the State was above normal for 1969 and 1970. The discharge of the North Platte River at Lawellen and Bridgeport was 106 percent of the 10 year mean (1960-1969) in 1969 and 134 percent in 1970. The U. S. Environmental Data Service divides the State into eight geographical weather reporting divisions. During 1969 their records indicate the State received 108 percent of normal precipitation with two divisions receiving deficient rainfall amounts, the panhandle with 95 percent and the north central division receiving 89 percent. In 1970 the panhandle precipitation was 98 percent of normal with the State receiving 97 percent and only two portions of Nebraska exceeding the average, the central division with 102 percent and the south central with 106 percent.

The runoff from the North Platte River above Pathfinder Dam was 992,100 acre-feet in 1969 and 1,423,700 acre-feet during the 1970 water year or 107 percent and 153 percent of the 15 year average runoff. On July 8, 1969, the Wheatland Reservoir Number Two Dam failed and released in excess of 9,000 acre-feet of stored water down the Laramie River creating a peak flow of approximately 2,000 cubic feet per second near the confluence with the North Platte River. However, irrigation demands coupled with cut backs in Guernsey Reservoir releases prevented flood damage along the North Platte River.

In late May and early June of 1970 the above average snow melt from mountain areas of the North Platte drainage combined with seasonal rainfall to pose a rather serious flood threat and by June 21 the Glendo Reservoir flood pool contained 143,500 acre-feet. Cautious releases of the flood pool water scaled to the Laramie River discharge and downstream channel capacities averted major damage and by late June increasing irrigation demands further relieved the swollen North Platte River. U. S. Corps of Engineers estimates indicate that flood damages in excess of $2,000,000 were prevented by the upper North Platte River Reservoir system.

Although the aforementioned heavy runoff caused apprehension in some communities along the North Platte River it proved quite beneficial to water users in Wyoming and Nebraska. Irrigation storage appropriations of the North Platte, Kendrick and Glendo projects filled for the first time in over 10 years and Kingsley Reservoir content reached 1,910,200 acre-feet on June 17, 1970, insuring storage water users an abundant supply for the remainder of the irrigation season and above average carryover.

The flow of the North Platte River at the Wyoming-Nebraska State Line totaled 430,100 acre-feet in 1969 and 519,200 acre-feet in 1970 or 109 percent and 128 percent of average for the period 1960 to 1970. Peak flow for the two year period occurred on June 16, 1970, with a discharge of 4,340 cubic feet per second.

Kingsley Reservoir inflow for 1969 was 864,950 acre-feet and 1,074,050 acre-feet in 1970 representing 101 percent and 122 percent of average for the period 1960 to 1970. Peak flow at the Lewellen station on the North Platte River was 4,680 cubic feet per second on June 22, 1970. The measured outflow from Kingsley Reservoir was 852,600 acre-feet in 1969 and 973,700 acre-feet during 1970.

The discharge at the upstream point of the Platte River (confluence of the North and South Platte River, including the Sutherland Power Return) near the city of North Platte was 1,375,400 acre-feet in 1969 and 1,735,540 acre-feet in 1970. Approximately 80 percent of the confluence flow was diverted and utilized by the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District.

The flow of the South Platte River into Nebraska was above normal for both years. The 1969 discharge of 475,700 acre-feet was 157,770 acre-feet in excess of the 10 year average (1960-1969) of 318,000 acre-feet. The 1970 record at Julesburg, Colorado, furnished by the Colorado State Engineer is still undergoing refinement. Certain hydrographic equipment was destroyed during high water occurring in June of 1970. On June 18, 1970, Nebraska hydrographers measured 9,400 cubic feet per second at the Julesburg station which was near peak flow for the 1970 water year.

Other peak instantaneous discharges of river stations in the Platte drainage during 1970 are North Platte River at North Platte, 3,000 cubic feet per second on June 27, South Platte River at North Platte, 6,300 cubic feet per second on June 20, Platte River at Brady, 8,010 cubic feet per second on June 24, Platte River at Cozad, 7,760 cubic feet per second on June 25, Platte River at Overton, 8,480 cubic feet per second on June 25 and Platte River at Odessa, 8,120 cubic feet per second on June 26.

The Platte River at Odessa is the downstream gaging station in Division 1-A. Water passing this station flows unused out of Nebraska. The 1969 and 1970 discharges at this station were 944,800 acre-feet and 1,256,800 acre-feet, respectively. The average flow for the period 1960-1970 is 832,400 acre-feet.

Niobrara River water for the 11,700 acre Mirage Flats project was again in short supply during the biennium. Inflow into the project's Box Butte Reservoir was 17,340 acre-feet in 1969 and 19,650 acre-feet in 1970 which is 84 percent and 96 percent of the 1960-1970 average. Irrigation diversions for the project were 20,050 acre-feet in 1969 and 19,000 acre-feet in 1970. Heavy irrigation demands and reservoir losses reduced Box Butte Reservoir carryover to 1,950 acre-feet on September 30, 1970, the lowest carryover since 1945 when the project began storing water. This circumstance would indicate a short supply of storage water for the coming year unless heavy runoff occurs in the Niobrara drainage. During the past 10 years Mirage Flats irrigators have made increasing use of ground water wells to supplement surface water in meeting minimum irrigation requirements.

Summer precipitation in 1969 was generally favorable throughout the state, it being most favorable in the Republican River Basin. However, some shortages of water were experienced in the Big Blue River Basin where during the peak of the irrigation season strict administration was required.

The 1970 water year proved to be one of the driest in the past fifteen years, however, there was adequate storage water for those lands having storage rights in the larger reservoirs. The Water Resources Review, published by the U. S. Geological Survey, showed that the stream runoff during July, 1970, was within the lowest 25 percent of record for the month for all of Nebraska except the panhandle area. The accumulated departures of precipitation in the central and eastern parts of the State reached 3.4 inches below normal for June and July.

ADMINISTRATION OF WATER RIGHTS

The water supply, in the North Platte River Basin, being somewhat above normal there were no major problems encountered in the administration of water rights. The usual procedure was followed, in the summer months, limiting all appropriators to the amounts of their permits and denying water to the junior appropriators during those periods of insufficient supply.

Following are summaries of closing order issued during 1969 and 1970:

1969 Season

On July 17 closed canals and pumps upstream from Range 26 W. to Range 38 W. to protect rights antedating September 7, 1926.

On July 21 closed canals upstream from Range 23 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating January 23, 1895.

On July 26 opened all appropriations on the North and South Platte Rivers to natural flow.

On August 10 closed canals upstream from Range 23 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating January 23, 1895.

On August 13 closed canals upstream from Range 23 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating August 13, 1894.

On August 14 closed canals upstream from Range 23 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating February 12, 1894.

On August 26 opened four canals upstream from Range 38 W. to protect rights antedating June 9, 1894.

On August 28 opened six canals upstream from Range 38 W. to protect rights antedating November 20, 1894.

September 4 opened all appropriations on the North Platte, South Platte and Platte Rivers and tributaries to natural flow except Pumpkinseed and Blue Creek.

1970 Season

On July 18 closed canals and pumps upstream from Range 26 W. to Range 38 W. to protect rights antedating September 7, 1926.

On July 23 closed canals upstream from Range 25 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating December 28, 1894.

On July 28 opened 26 appropriations upstream from Range 25 W. to Range 58 W. to protect rights antedating September 7, 1926.

On July 30 opened all appropriations on the North Platte, South Platte and Platte Rivers and tributaries to natural flow except Pumpkinseed and Blue Creek.

In the Niobrara River Basin canals upstream from the Mirage Flats Project with priority dates subsequent to January 25, 1937, were closed in 1969 from June 2 to July 14, and from July 16 to September 17. Also three older appropriations were closed, to benefit an 1883 priority, from June 8 through September 30. In 1970 Niobrara River junior appropriators were again closed from July 2 through September 10 to protect rights antedating January 25, 1937.

In the White River Basin four junior appropriations were closed in 1970 for varying lengths of time to benefit 1896 and 1898 priorities.

The Department was called upon to administer water in the Hat Creek Basin during 1970. As noted in the 1965-1966 Biennial Report a State Supreme Court decision indicates that downstream riparian owners in the Hat Creek Basin are entitled to livestock water as against the rights of appropriators for irrigation. After receiving requests from downstream riparian owners for stock water and consultation with Attorneys representing both interests the Department issued closing orders to all irrigation and storage appropriators on Warbonnet, Sow Belly, Jim, Monroe and Hat Creeks effective September 18, 1970. On October 16, 1970, the runoff from a heavy snow fall created flow in the lower reaches of the Hat Creek Basin and the previously closed storage and irrigation appropriations were opened. Prior to the snow fall the runoff in the Basin was insufficient to produce flow in Hat Creek near Montrose.

The drought conditions of 1970 created a demand for water administration on many streams in eastern Nebraska where it had been unnecessary for several years. The first complaint on the Big Blue River came on June 19, 1970, at least a month before it usually is expected. It was not until the first week in August that the supply and demand were such that we could open all permits. The shortage on this stream was so severe that more than 60 percent of the stream pumps were shut off a large part of the season. At the peak of the shortage there were four field men regulating pumps on the Big Blue River.

For the first time in history the department was called upon to administer the Keya Paha River. Irrigation, especially the sprinkler type, has expanded greatly on this stream during the past few years and the shortage in 1970 was very severe. There are no storage reservoirs to supply supplemental water and ground water is not available in sufficient quantities to provide a supply.

The September 30, 1970, carryover storage in the North Platte and Loup basin reservoirs was above average, but the Republican basin reservoirs were the lowest in many years.

HYDROGRAPHY

The cooperative stream gauging program between the U. S. Geological Survey and the Department of Water Resources, which has been in effect since 1930, was continued during the current biennium with each party expending about $104,000 annually. This continues to be largely a matching of services, although some direct payment of funds is made to the Geological Survey for such things as publishing records annually and for computerizing data. As usual the department's hydrographers collected data on diversions from streams and measured minor streams not in the cooperative program.

During this biennium hydrographers of the department have made water quality field measurements at 16 stations in eastern Wyoming and western Nebraska on a weekly schedule from July through December and on a monthly schedule for the remainder of each year. The measurements include air and water temperatures, specific conductance, pH, dissolved oxygen, turbidity, total and fecal coliforms. Additional water samples, both filtered and unfiltered, were collected for analysis in the laboratory of U. S. Geological Survey in Lincoln. The results of the analyses are published by the Geological Survey as Water Resources Data for Nebraska, Part 2.

INTERSTATE COMPACTS

Negotiations with the State of Kansas on a compact to apportion the waters of the Big Blue River Basin were essentially completed during September 1970. A formula for the management of the waters of the basin was agreed upon by the representatives of the two states and the federal representatives on the compact commission, and plans were being made to publicize the compact and to draft legislation to be submitted to the Legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska when they convene in January, 1971.

The Upper Niobrara River Compact, between Wyoming and Nebraska, was finally approved by the Congress on August 4, 1969, six years after it was ratified by Nebraska. The terms of the compact relate only to the part of the Niobrara River Basin which lies in Wyoming and Nebraska upstream from Agate, Nebraska. It limits the capacity of any domestic or livestock water impoundment constructed after August 1, 1957, in the Wyoming part of the basin to 20 acre-feet, and limits total storage in such reservoirs in Wyoming to 500 acre-feet annually. Water may not be stored in such reservoirs during the May-September period if the water is required for direct diversion in Nebraska. Direct flow rights are to be administered in order of priority. In keeping with the congressional legislation consenting to the negotiation of the compact, the two states and the U. S. Geological Survey will undertake a cooperative ground water survey in the state line area to determine whether or not the effects of ground water pumping are such that limitations on ground water use should become a part of the compact and, if so, the parties shall initiate the negotiation of a supplement to the compact.

LEGISLATION

None of the legislation enacted by the 1969 Legislature significantly affects the work of the Department of Water Resources. However, there were some laws of major importance in the field of water resource development, such as the Natural Resources District bill, Legislative Bill 1357, and the Water Data Bank bill, Legislative Bill 384.

The Natural Resources District bill provides that the entire area of the State shall be divided into natural resources districts and it directs the Soil and Water Conservation Commission to determine and establish the exact number of such districts and their boundaries after holding public hearings. The number of such districts shall be not less than 25 nor more than 50 and the boundaries of the districts shall generally follow approximate hydrologic or geologic patterns. A representative of this department participated in the hearings and in the determination of the boundaries.

A total of 33 districts were established by the commission and they are to become operative on January 1, 1972. However, as this report is going to press, early in 1971, the Legislature has before it one bill to repeal L.B. 1357 and several other bills to amend the act significantly.

The purposes of natural resources districts are to develop and execute plans, facilities, works and programs relating to erosion prevention and control, prevention of damages from flood waters and sediments, flood prevention and control, soil conservation, water supply, management and conservation of ground and surface waters, pollution control, drainage improvements, development and management of fish and wild life habitat, recreation and park facilities, forestry and range, and mosquito abatement. The law makes it mandatory that existing soil and water conservation districts, the various types of water shed districts, and mosquito abatement districts merge with the resources districts.

The data bank bill authorizes the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission to establish a data bank in the area of soil and water. It requires that pertinent data collected in the state by the various governmental agencies, such as discharge records of streams and canals and water well data collected by the Department of Water Resources, shall be made available to the commission for inclusion in the data bank. The establishment of the data bank is progressing on schedule.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

Irrigation continued to expand as evidenced by the filing of 523 applications for permits for appropriate water, and the registration of 2,855 new irrigation wells during the biennium. On September 30, 1970, there were a total of 34,954 registered irrigation wells. There are now also 835 Municipal and Industrial wells registered.

Renewed hope that the proposed Twin Loups irrigation project on the North Loup and Loup Rivers, and the O'Neill Project on the Niobrara River may become a reality resulted from the field hearings on the reports for the two projects which were held in July, 1970, by the Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. Good support for the proposals was expressed by all who appeared and the members of the subcommittee reacted favorably.

Seven rural water districts to supply domestic water were organized under Chapter 46, Article 10, R.R.S. 1943, as follows:

- Nemaha County Rural Water District No. 1
- Boyd County Rural Water District No. 1
- Johnson County Rural Water District No. 1
- Pawnee County Rural Water District No. 1
- Richardson County Rural Water District No. 1
- Lancaster County Rural Water District No. 1
- Otoe County Rural Water District No. 1

PUBLIC POWER AND IRRIGATION DISTRICTS

A total of eight hearings relating to the organization of public power and irrigation districts were held by the department. Hearings of major importance were four held in 1969 with respect to the Consumers Public Power District and the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District which culminated in the merging of the two districts under the name of the Nebraska Public Power District. Thus was accomplished the placing of the major transmission and generating facilities of the state under one board of directors, an objective which had long been sought by the Legislature and certain power interests. Another major change was the amending of the creative petition of the Loup River Public Power District to expand its voting territory from Platte County to include also Boone, Nance, Colfax and part of Greeley County.

In other actions the Gering Valley Rural Public Power District was dissolved and the territory was included in Roosevelt Public Power District.

WATER DIVISIONS AND WATER DISTRICTS

WATER DIVISIONS: DENOMINATION

The State of Nebraska is hereby divided into two water divisions, denominated Water Division No. 1 and Water Division No. 2, respectively. Reissue Revised Statutes, 1943, 46-215.

WATER DIVISION NO. 1. BOUNDARIES

Water Division No. 1 shall consist of all the lands of the state drained by the Platte rivers and their tributaries lying west of the mouth of the Loup river; and also all other lands lying south of the Platte and South Platte rivers that may be watered from other superficial or subterranean streams not tributary to the Platte river. Reissue Revised Statutes, 1943, 46-216.

WATER DIVISION NO. 2. BOUNDARIES

Water Division No. 2 shall consist of all lands that may be watered from the Loup, White, Niobrara and Elkhorn rivers and their tributaries, and other lands of the state not included in any other water division. Reissue Revised Statutes, 1943, 46-217.

DISTRIBUTION

For convenience in the adjudication of claims and in the distribution of water, these divisions have been subdivided into twelve water divisions, denominated 1-A, 1-B, 1-C, 1-D, 1-E, 1-F, 2-A, 2-B, 2-C, 2-D, 2-E and 2-F, as shown on the opposite page.

CLAIMS AND APPLICATIONS

The following tables give a complete list of all claims and applications of record in the Department of Water Resources which have not been canceled. This list also includes pending applications which have not yet been approved.

The claims and applications have been arranged in each water division by streams in alphabetical order, and the appropriations on each stream are arranged in order of priority.

Appropriations having docket numbers refer to claims covering rights which were acquired under the law prior to April 4, 1895, and those having application numbers were filed to appropriate water under the law of 1895.

Following these tables is a list of water appropriations which have been canceled in full or in part, or which have been dismissed during the past two years.
